

HAEUNDAE FOREIGNER'S KOREAN LANGUAGE SCHOOL, COOKING CLASS, AND CULTURE CLASS

■ Haeundae Cultural Complex Center has a special school to help foreign residents adjust to life in Korea

The Foreigners' Korean Language School has been running since all the way back to 2006.

The program is open for anyone who wants to learn Korean, regardless of gender or nationality. There are currently about 50 students including international students, travelers, and immigrants ranging in age from 20 all the way up into their 70's.

There are currently 30 teachers that hold free Korean classes every Tuesday from 5:00 to 6:30 p.m., and Wednesday from 10:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m.

There are also several special programs featured, such as an international cooking class, local culture tours, and various other cultural activities.

The language classes seek to break stereotypes. They include stretching classes, singing songs, writing, as well as 1:1 speaking. While there are textbooks, they usually don't use them in favor of chatting or free talking.

The Korean teachers also instruct their foreign students about Korean culture, talking on the phone, as well as assisting them in private matters like when students apply for citizenship.

One student was quoted to say, "Life is a lot less lonely here in Korea because my teachers have become like mothers to me." Teachers frequently attend migrant weddings or the first birthday parties of their babies.

Twice a year, both the teachers and students go on a group tour, and at the end of the year, they have recreation time together as well.

Nuentitue is from the Philippines and is taking a course in Korean literature while working on her doctorate. This Korean Language School provided her with the language skills needed to thrive in Korea. "The teachers treated me like family," she said,

"Even now when I'm stressed or feel like I'm hitting rock bottom, I still go there to talk and feel better."

Edita from the Philippines is a married migrant. She said, "The teachers treated me like I was their daughter and it helped me ease into the culture. It really helped my marriage life and my relationship with my children."

Yi Ki Yeong has been head of the Korean Language School since 2008. "I'm going to open a class for multi-cultural families, so parents and children can come and study together," he said, "This language school needs more support to be more active so we are seeking outside assistance."

Here's hoping that this school will become the role model for sharing our language and culture with foreigners.
